Children & Society – Admissions Criteria

The Children & Society BDP offers students the opportunity to explore a variety of disciplinary approaches to the psychology and development of children and the social forces that impact them.

Successful applicants will:

- Clearly explain how the interdisciplinary nature of the Children & Society BDP will support their specific learning goals
- Clearly articulate how each of the courses they plan to take toward the certificate will provide an interdisciplinary perspective on this BDP topic
- Clearly explain how the Children & Society BDP will expose the student to disciplinary contexts outside his/her major
- Describe how past experiences have shaped their learning goals for this BDP
- Have a clear plan for how to complete requirements for the Children & Society BDP before graduating
- Have a minimum GPA of 2.5
